

Learning and Development with

The Environment Council

Open courses

Building capacity for sustainability is our passion. We aim to empower you and your organisation to make better decisions on sustainability issues, and we achieve this by building your capacity for engagement and communication, collaborative decision-making, and facilitation skills. The Environment Council's training courses are designed to give you the skills and confidence to design, manage and evaluate a range of stakeholder engagement and public dialogue processes.

Bespoke learning

Our experienced engagement and facilitation experts are on hand to create innovative training solutions specific to your needs. We are able to deliver bespoke training for your organisation either at a venue of your choice or at The Environment Council's training venue - The Heritage Rooms in central London. We are also able to offer individually tailored coaching and mentoring for those who wish to go further in maximising their talent and performance.

Why our courses?

- Our learning and development activities are the result of our own practice and research in the field of stakeholder engagement, and drawing from our wide range of expertise and knowledge we will equip you with practical tools and techniques to enable you to have better conversations.
- We are a charity whose key purpose is to put the environment at the heart of people's choices, decisions and aspirations.
- Our courses have a great reputation and attract participants from a range of sectors and organisations, and we encourage you to share your experiences and network during the courses.
- Our training venue is The Heritage Rooms; a unique listed building overlooking Bloomsbury Square in central London, easily accessible by bus, tube and mainland rail.
- Our Learning and Development team are on hand and online to discuss your learning needs, and to help you decide on the best course for you.
